The fertile fields which give us life and great productive mines

Surround Penn Township High School with classic
monumental lines

Where new frontiers come into view, new human needs unfold

The challenge of a modern world within our school
we hold

Of many great historic shrines are famous stories told

Yet more esteemed than any seems you Bushy
Run which we behold;

Joe Salencic

No savage menace threatens us within our stately halls,

Yet we revere the courage which that battle oft recalls.

As stands yon great historic shrine, may we stand
firm and tall;

With courage and a zeal to learn, with labor that shall conquer all;

And may our hearts where'er we roam for ever loyal be

To you — Renn Township High School — which guides our destiny.

Ruth G. Peters

dedication

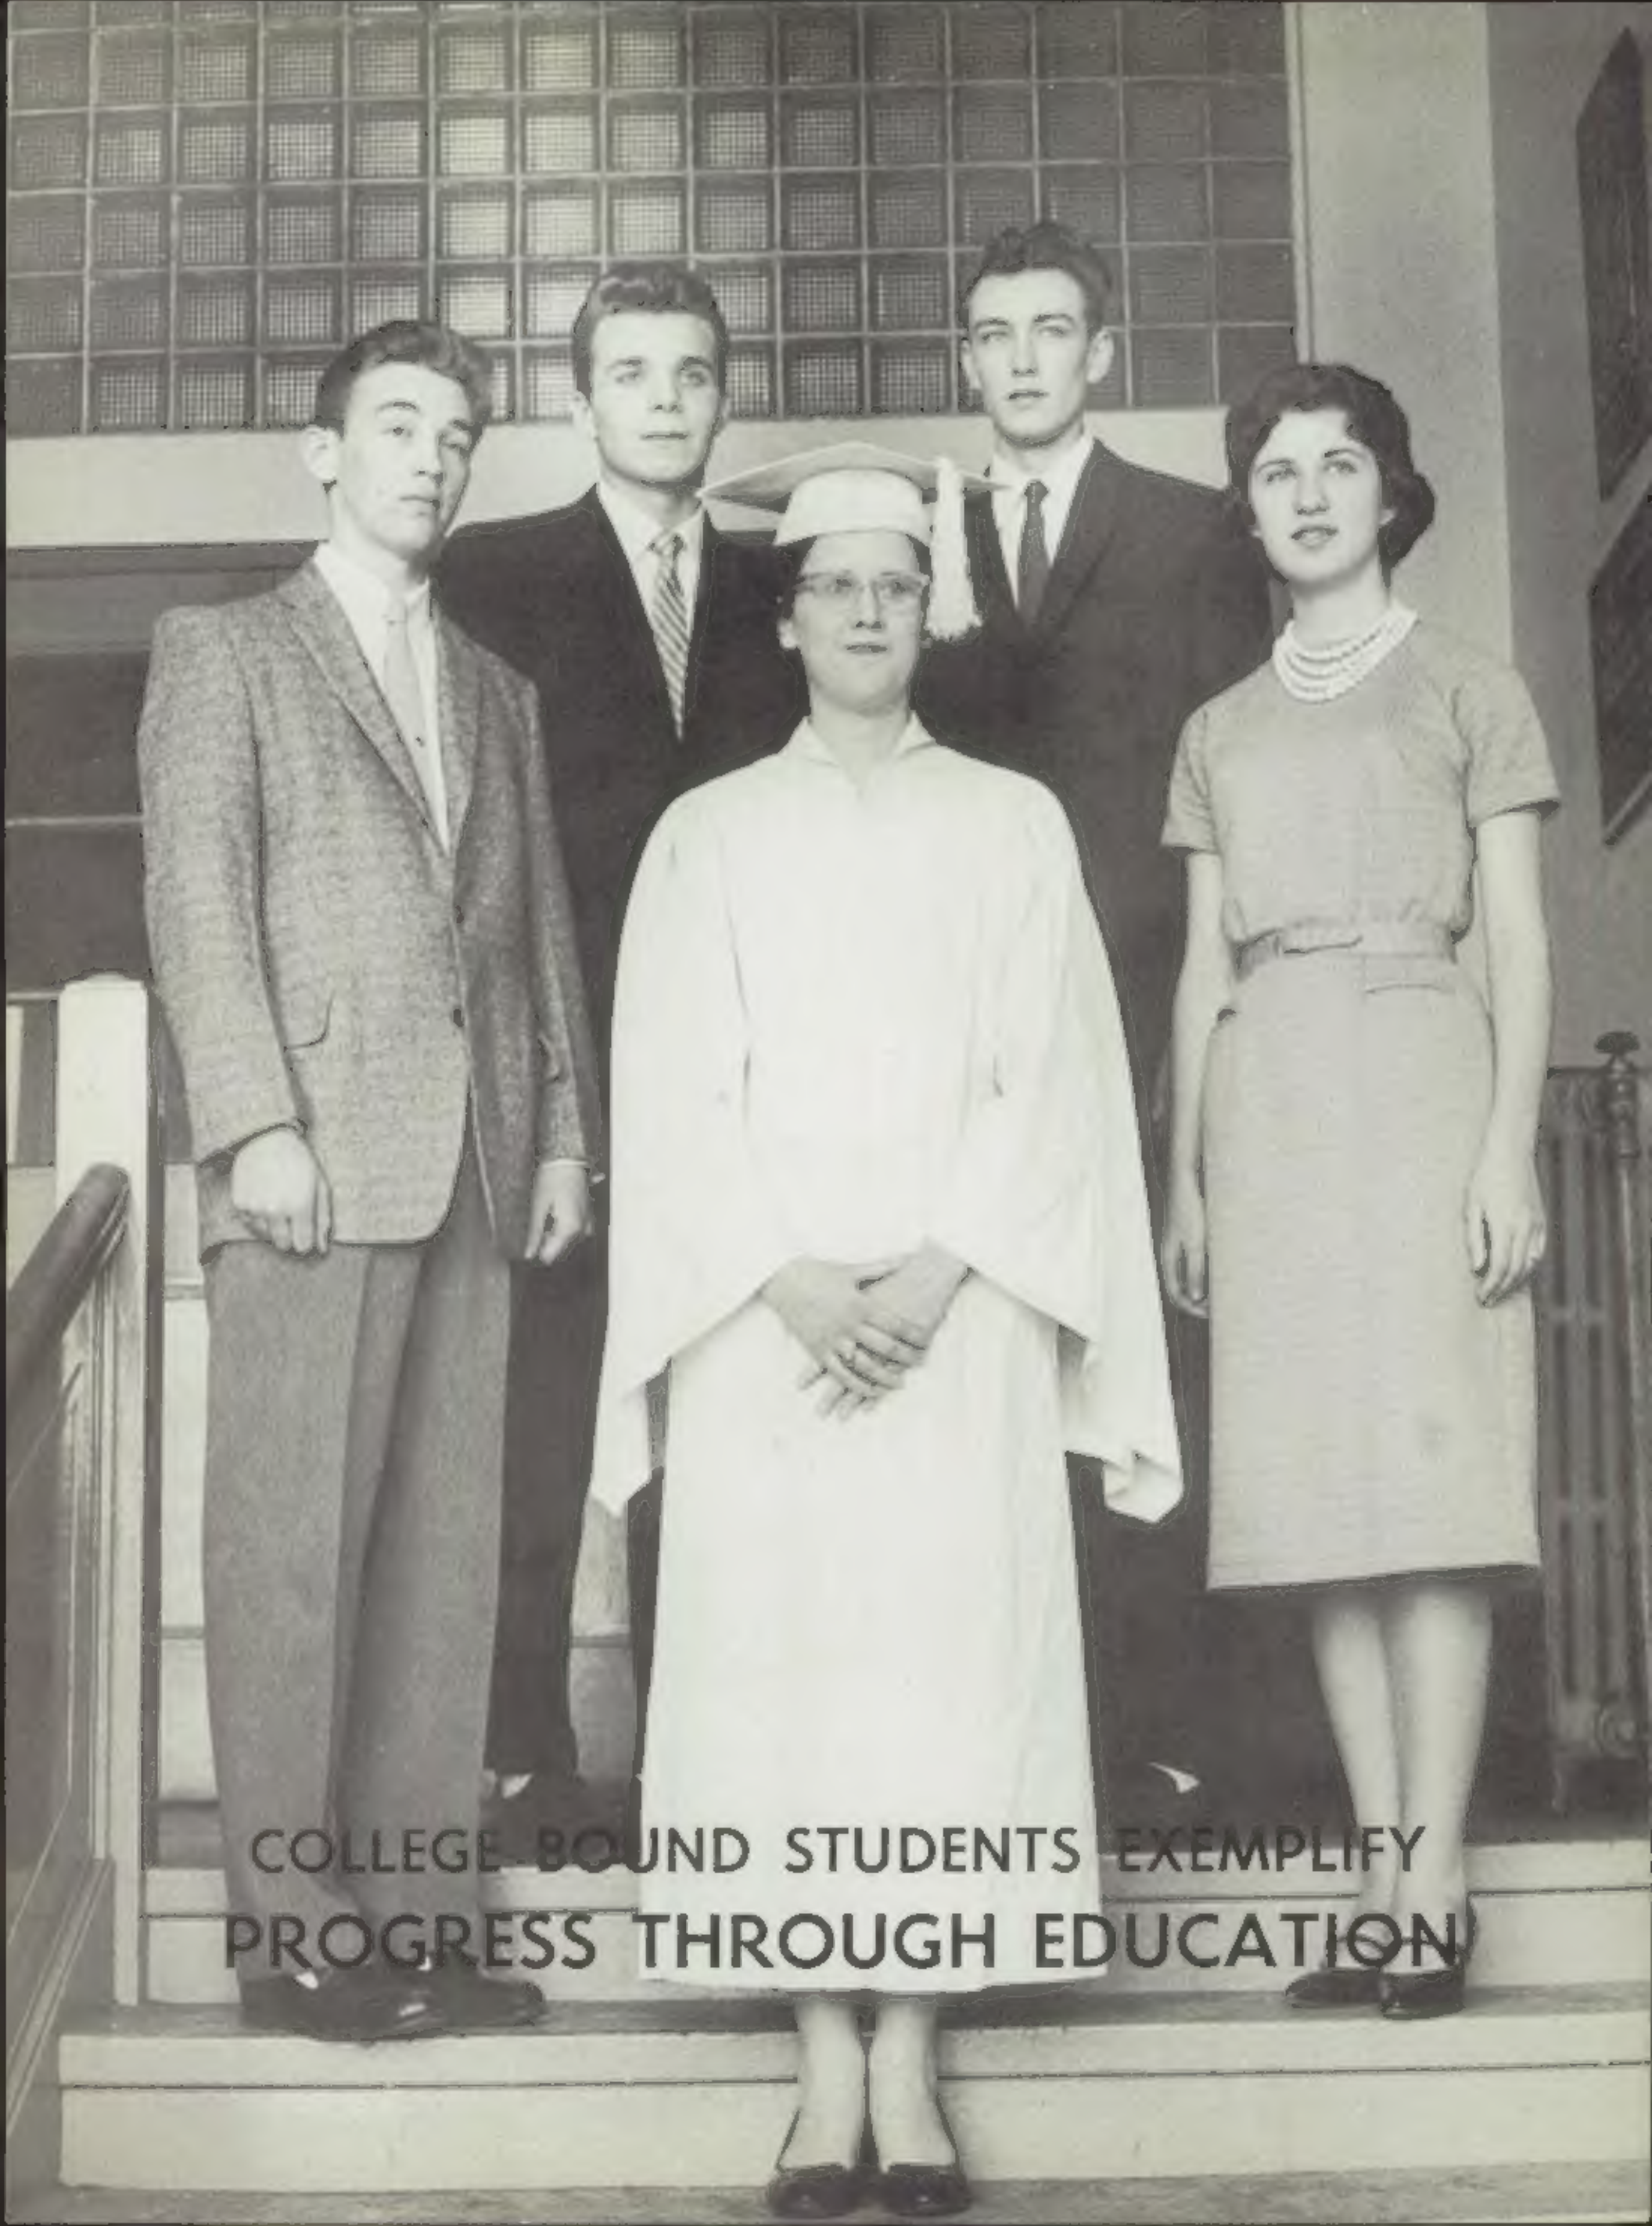

As we, the graduating class of 1960, look back over our years of progress through the public schools, many persons have touched and influenced our lives. The future years will hold pleasant memories of the hard work, relaxing activities, and personal associations which we have encountered. Outstanding in all of these memories will be the friendship and encouragement extended to us by Miss Ruth Peters.

For years Miss Peters has prodded her students through the NOMA spelling lists, one thousand vocabulary words, and investigative themes. Little did those students realize the importance and values of the assignments at that time, but many of them now appreciate the experience gained from them. For this reason, a senior can consider himself fortunate when he is assigned to her English class.

In addition to her class work, Miss Peters has unselfishly devoted her time to the school lunch program and yearbook.

It is with sincere appreciation that the editors of this yearbook, representing the student body, dedicate the 1960 Penn Point to Miss Ruth G. Peters—small reward for what she has given us.

To these men and women goes the most important job in the community—that of directing the lives and shaping the future of youth of the entire area. Many challenges must be met and many obstacles overcome in successfully carrying out the educational program for these students. In addition, this task must be performed well so that from kindergarten to senior high school students truly progress through education.

PROGRESS THROUGH EDUCATION

When used in isolation the difference between the terms "education" and "progress" can be vague, but obviously, under the intent of the theme of the 1960 Penn Point, progress in itself is corollary to education. Education symbolizes growth and development in knowledge, skills, ability or character by teaching, training, study, or experience. Progress suggests advancement, growth, development, or improvement.

The purpose of education is to open the mind and make it receptive, to give it ample space over which to roam, to enrich, and to endow with new faculties. Being thus refined, the mind is given an opportunity to escape from things material, present, or commonplace. Consequently, a person who has had his mind satisfactorily educated is equipped to apply himself successfully to any vocation that requires intelligence, method, precision, concentration, patience, or any of the powers developed by a good education. No one would dispute the fact that these qualities have contributed immeasurably to the progress of civilization as we know it.

The following story will illustrate the importance of education in its proper perspective to progress. A farmer hired a man and set him to work chopping wood. When he checked in the middle of the morning, he was amazed to find the wood all chopped. Next day he told the hand to stack the wood in the shed; he figured this would keep him busy, but by noon the job was done. On the third day, the farmer decided to give him a light job. He instructed him to sort out the potatoes in the bin, putting the good ones in one pile, the doubtful in another, and to throw out the rotten ones. An hour or so later the farmer went back to see how the job was progressing. He found the hired man passed out cold, with virtually nothing done. After throwing cold water in the man's face and bringing him around, the farmer demanded an explanation.

"Damn," the man said wearily, "It's makin' them decisions that's killin' me."

It has been the trained and the educated mind that has made the great decisions that have accounted for the marvelous progress the world has made.

We usually attribute to man two very distinctive characteristics. The first is his highly-developed brain; the other, his generalized body form. In addition, he possesses unusually facile and useful hands. His brain permitted him to outwit physically stronger enemies; with his hands, it gave him ability to fashion weapons and tools. The second permitted him to adapt himself successfully to the varied and changing conditions he confronted over the world. The development of his mind, the supreme gift of all creation, has given men a large control over his destiny and determined our achievement. In fact, man has so largely improved the variety and power of his techniques and tools that the effect of his actions upon his environment has been likened to a "large scale geologic force." However, it is not mere acquisition of knowledge that is important, but the ability to put such knowledge into practice.

Since education is a bearer of a nation's ideals, our civilization is more than machines, buildings and the material things around us, important as these may be. The hope of the future lies in man's desire to be better than he is, as well as in his willingness to become better. This desire is the motivating force in progress and is aptly expressed by the poet, Holmes: "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul."

John W. Mochnick.

and earned its funds

Think. How can we make money to finance the Junior-Senior Prom? I know We'll let a committee do it.

At a special meeting of the Prom Planning Committee, they decide to run the concession stand at the football games. Ahh, but we need something with customer appeal. I have it! We'll sell a choice blend of coffee. Soooo . . .

In the midnight shadows, a brew was concocted. "That's right, girls, third burner on the left."

What was the secret? I'll never tell.

Diligently seeking tomorrows

Sophomores found new responsibilities awaiting them in their first year of senior high school. Undaunted by the problems confronting them, they showed great co-operation and determination to succeed.

Ahem . . . fellows! Perhaps you're co-operating too much. Look at the next picture. Now—that's the way you should prepare your work.

Being called upon by the class showed new adult attitudes. Sophomores enjoyed the opportunity to express their ideas and opinions through free discussion. However, as the picture below points out, in every democracy there are areas of despotism.

A large, stylized graphic in the top right corner of the page. It consists of numerous parallel diagonal lines in a vibrant blue color, set against a white background. The lines are arranged in a way that they appear to fan out or converge towards the right edge of the page, creating a sense of movement and depth. The overall effect is modern and dynamic.

STUDENT LIFE

SCHOOL DAYS

SCHOOL DAYS

Knowledge is the fabric of sound decisions. At this stage of learning, we sift through knowledge in an attempt to find accurate answers to our many inquiries. Our work ranges from routine studies to digging out and evaluating information for our complex investigative themes

Forward looking students need forward looking courses. As science and modern communication grow, we, as students, must grow along with it. We must have the urge to create which must not be stifled by social pressures. So as we progress through education, we are thankful we will have a hand in things to come

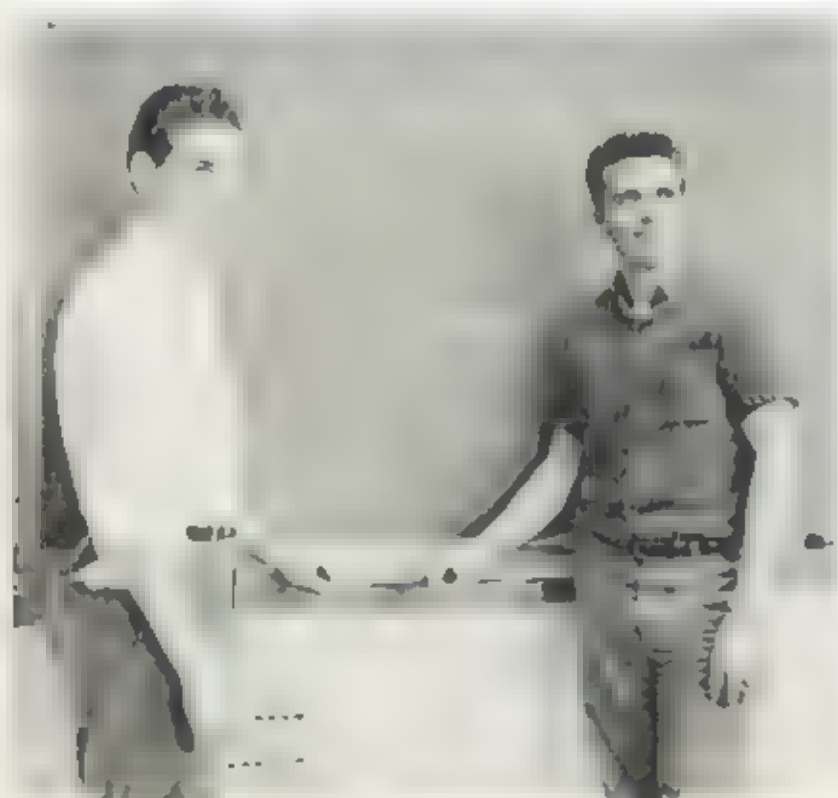

GOOD OLD GOLDEN RULE DAYS

READIN', RITIN', AND RITHMETIC

Today, we're witnessing one of the hardest fought crusades the world has ever seen—the all-out assault on every frontier of knowledge. The beginning of these ventures are not marked with fanfare. The struggle is fought and won by groups of men sharing their knowledge.

Our nation's investment in education is already yielding dividends in terms of America's economic growth. Our next goal: to extend man's dominion to the moon and neighboring planets in the solar system. Therefore, while still concentrating on "reading', ritin', and rithmetic," we cannot turn our back on world affairs.

For The Opportunity To Develop

Typical scenes from one of our pep meetings show school spirit and sprit de corps of our student body. The band, cheer leaders, majorettes, and various other organizations helped make our pep meetings enjoyable for the students and encouraging for the boys on our team.

The first lyceum of the year had Dr. Parks, who lectured on Americanism. Many questions were asked of him concerning his talk and experiences.

Wimpey the Clown, the second participant in our lyceum schedule, demonstrated the type of make-up used by clowns in England and America.

Mr. Goodman, a world-renowned organist, made the third assembly an enjoyable one. Many different types of music were presented by him during his performance.

"The Mighty Missouri," which was presented by the Harrisons, frequent visitors to our school, was educational as well as entertaining.

A trampoline act presented by the Koehlers proved enjoyable not only to the students who participated in it, but also to the whole student body.

A typical school day at PJHS starts at approximately 8:00. By this time, the buses which bring the students have arrived. There is a fifteen minute period during which we can socialize before starting our exhausting routine. At 8:15 attendance is taken, devotions are held, and announcements of the day's activities are made. Then our classes begin. We share our ideas in the academic, commercial, and general classes. In a world where nation alism is collapsing, the modern language has become more and more important in our communications. The social studies must relate the past to the present. Opportunity to express student's ideas and opinions through free discussion is encouraged. Science and mathematics make good work ing partners, and their importance is stressed in today's courses. Shorthand, transcription, business math, and typing prepare our commercial students for the business world. A basic education is obtained by our students in the general and vocational classes. At 4:00 our day is over and we make our way home, where we prepare our lessons for the following day.

When day is done
And shadows fall,
Who stays and sweeps our dirty halls?
Wally!

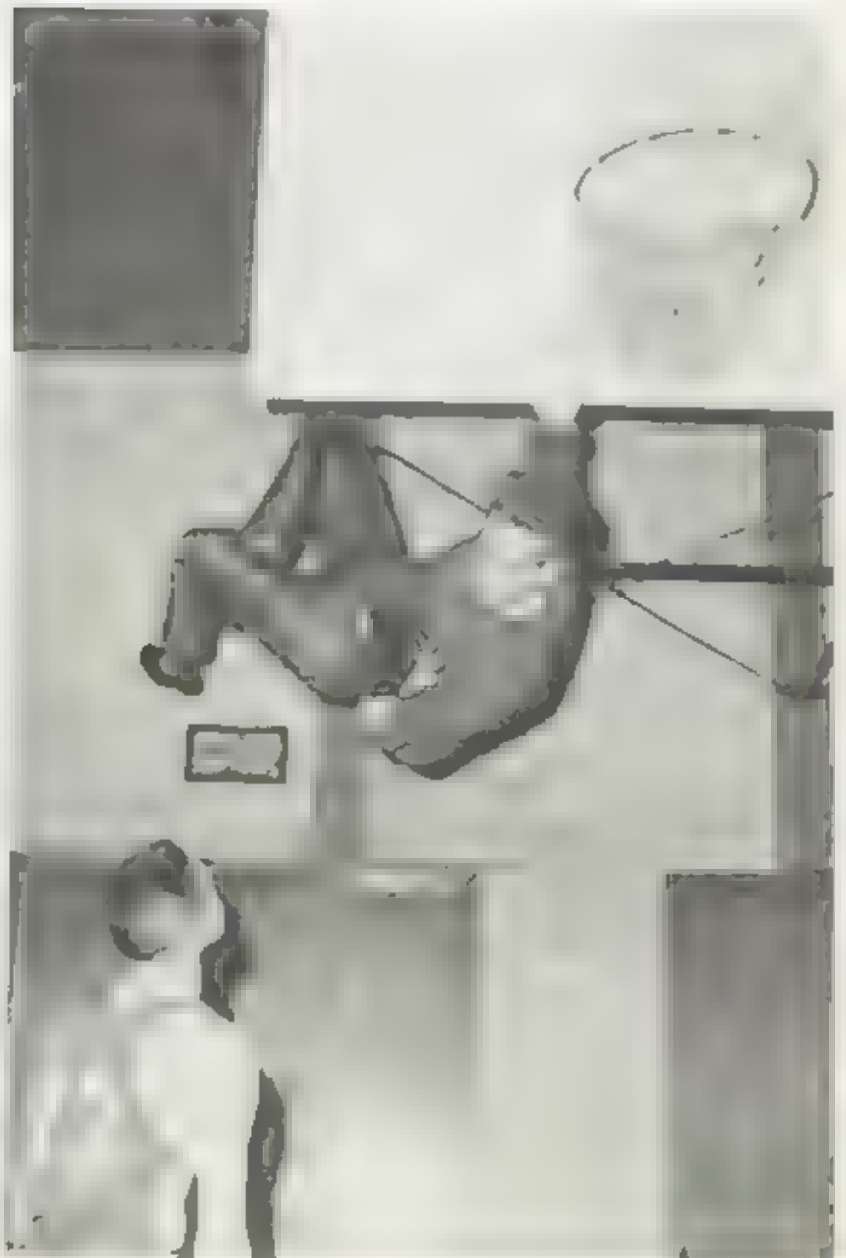

One of these days. Go rat

Look Mom! No cavities!

Our photographer will go to any extreme to get a good picture

Seniors win the Junior-Senior game

These members of the Senior Chorus participated in the PMEA Music Festivals during the school year. Ella Mae and Tom attended County, District, State, and National Choruses. Bill represented TJHS at County, District, and State Choruses, and Carole, Harry, Joe, and Jim went to County Chorus.

President Tom Watkins looks quite pleased with himself, and why not? Standing beside him are Treasurer Laura Faith Romage and Secretary Janet Senior. Nice company, isn't it?

Tom burst into song, but Ella Mae seems to be preoccupied. They were the first students to represent Penn Joint at National Chorus in Atlantic City.

To Joe,
Good luck in the future in everything you do. To a real nice boy who I had a marvelous time with at the Prom last year.

JoAnn Yates
P.S. Remember your surprise party.

Joe,
Luck in the future
to a swell kid,
R.M.H.
Carol D.

Joe Best of luck in the future. Keep up the
the good dancing.
Donnie Robb

Joe So one of the nicest upper classmen
I know. Lots of luck in your future executive positions & social activities.
Natie Painter

"Joe"
For a boy, a think is really nice I hope I see you down at dances more
R.M.H.

Jimmy
E

To Joe, one really nice senior. I'm sure your wonderful personality will yield much success in the future.
Jimmy

ALMA MATER

The fertile fields which give us life and great
productive mines

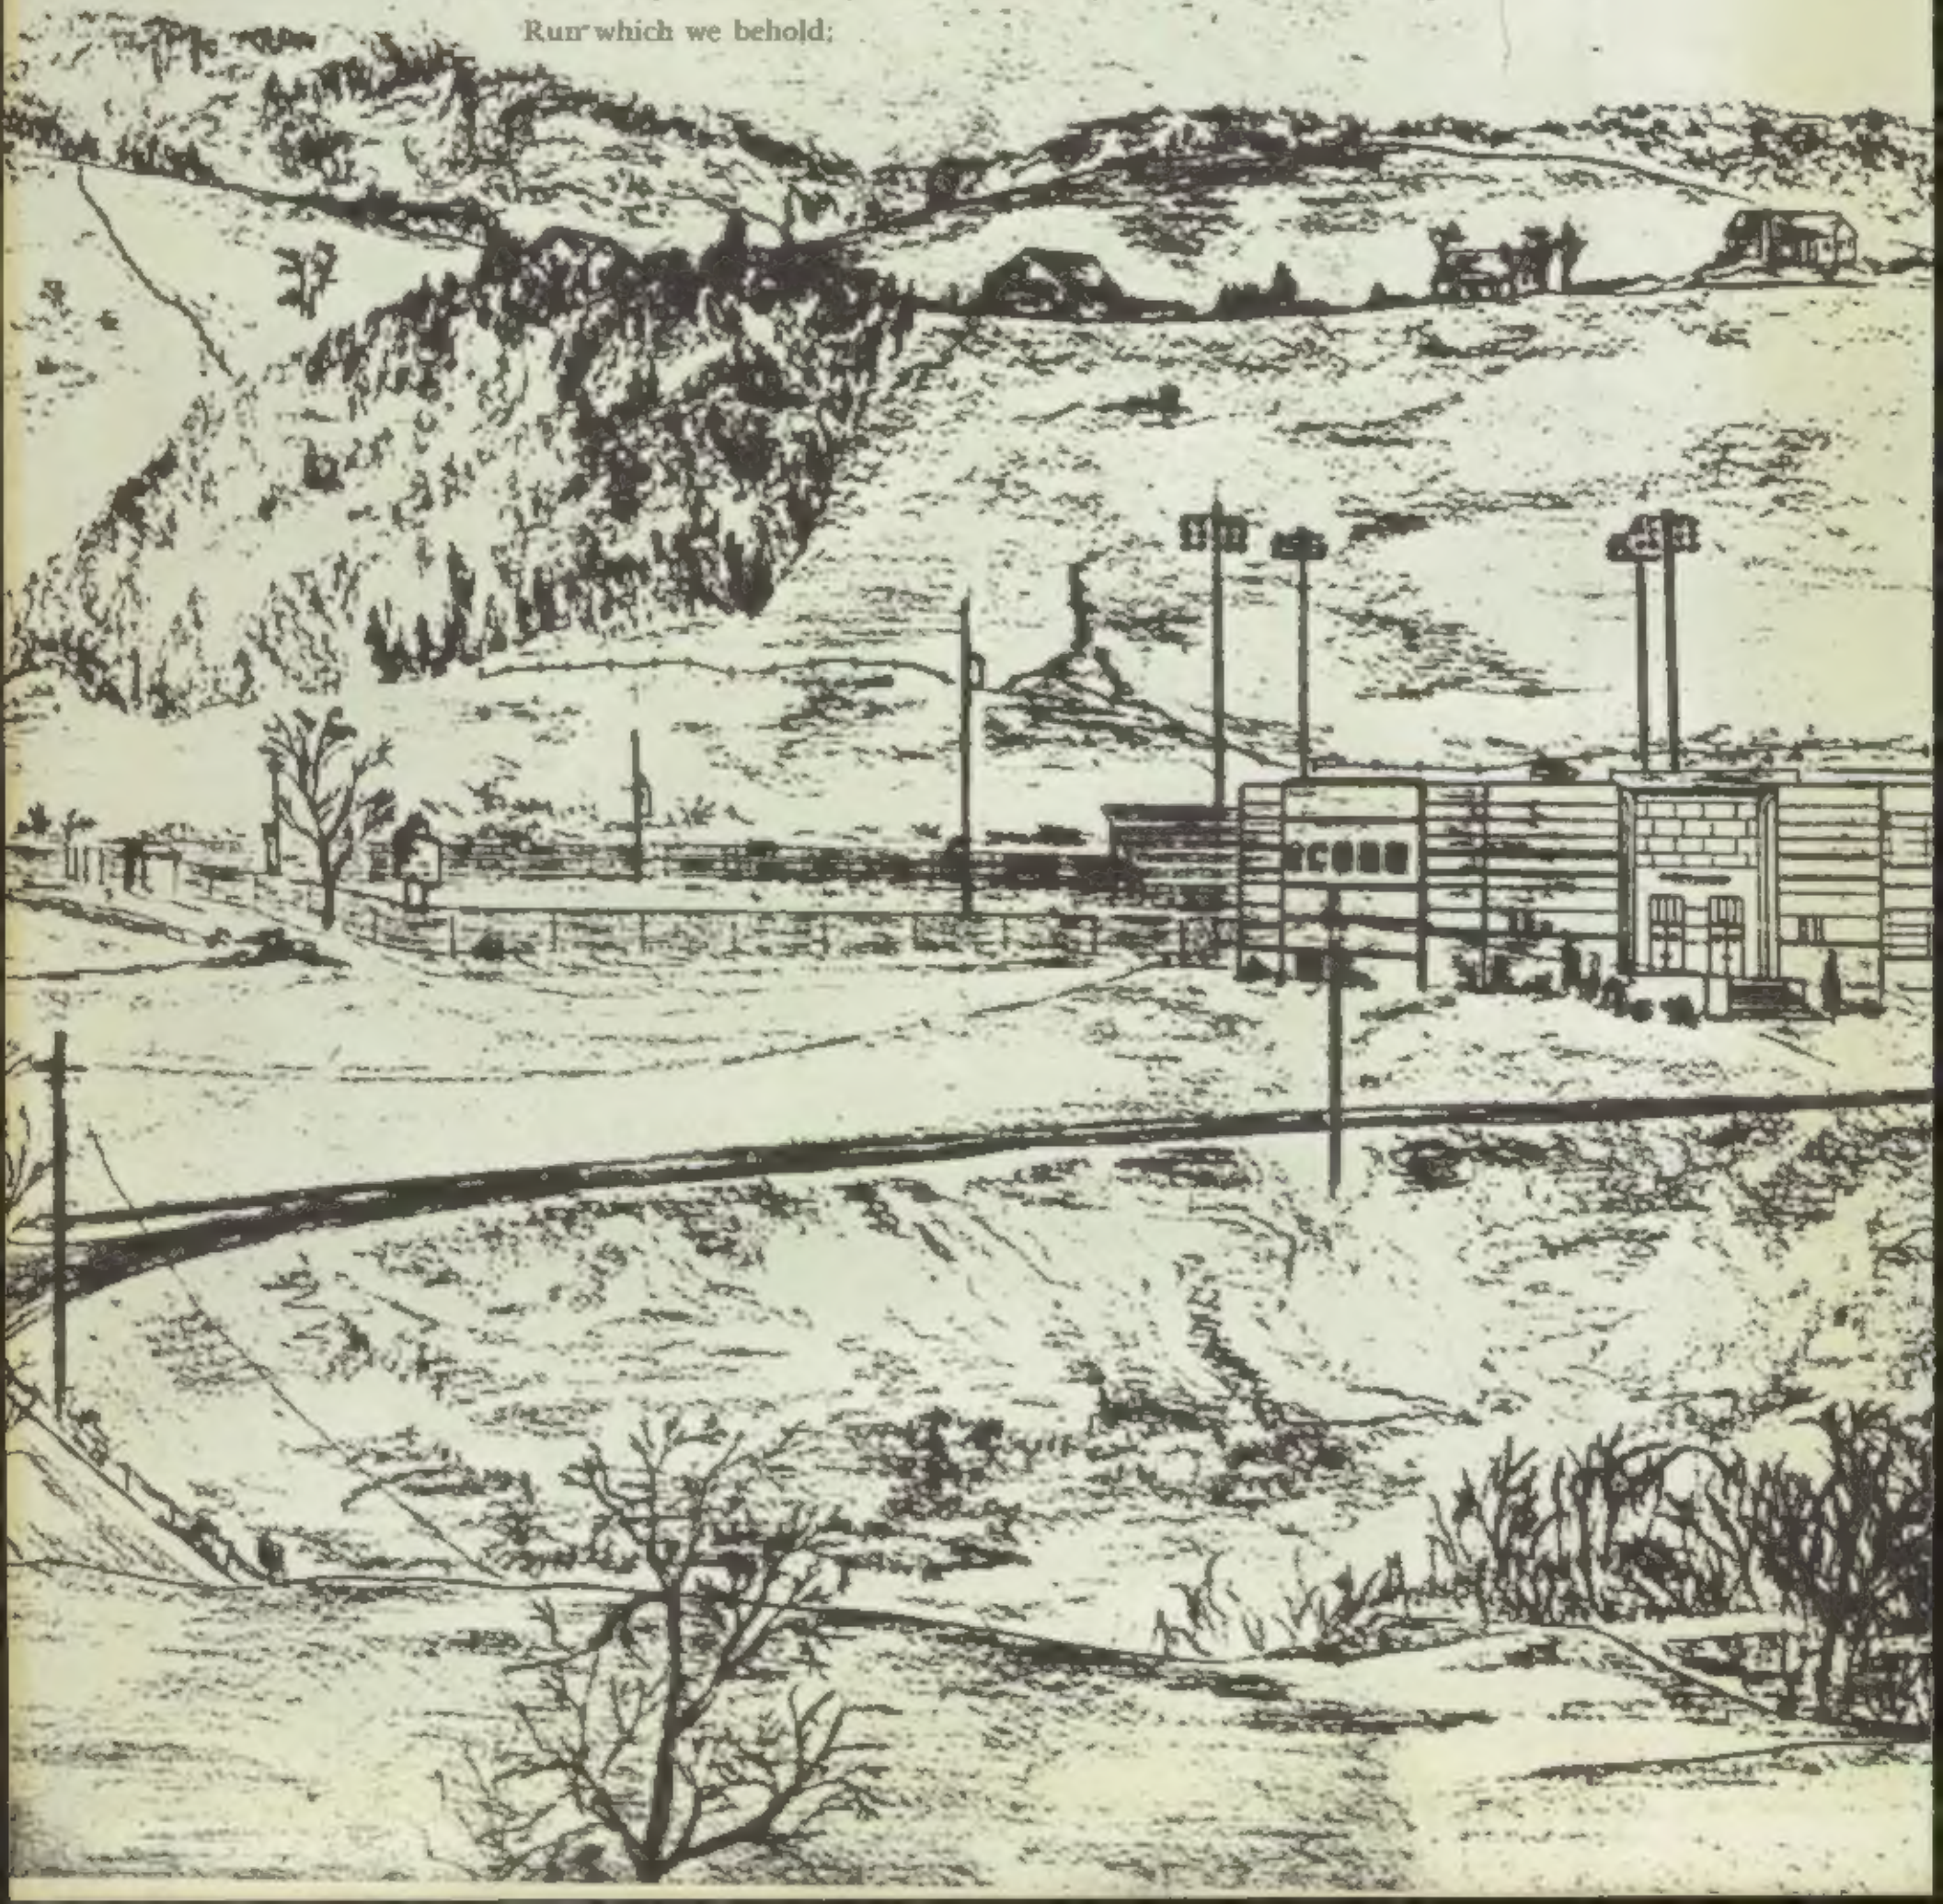

Surround Penn Township High School with classic
monumental lines

Where new frontiers come into view, new human
needs unfold,

The challenge of a modern world within our school
we hold.

Of many great historic shrines are famous stories
told,

Yet more esteemed than any seems yon Bushy
Run which we behold;

No savage menace threatens us within our stately
halls.

Yet we revere the courage which that battle oft recalls.

As stands yon great historic shrine, may we stand
firm and tall;

With courage and a zeal to learn, with labor that
shall conquer all;

And may our hearts where'er we roam for ever
loyal be

To you — Penn Township High School which guides our destiny.

Robert F. Kunkle

Bob Denton
